Derek Evely:

Beginning in the mid-1990s, Derek was, first, the Head Coach of the Kamloops Track and Field Club, where he worked with international athletes Shane Niemi, Gary Reed, and Dylan Armstrong, among others. From Kamloops, he moved to Edmonton to work alongside Kevin Tyler as the Sport Science Manager and National Team Long Sprints coach at the Canadian Athletics Coaching Centre \(CACC\). Focusing on coach education and training, application of sport science to track and field, and the overall development of the sport in Canada, the CACC was a hugely successful endeavour that led to both Kevin and Derek being recruited to high-level positions in the United Kingdom. Derek moved across the Atlantic in 2009 to become the Director of the Loughborough High Performance Centre (one of two in the UK – the other being in London, where Dan Pfaff was the Centre Director). Besides managing a group of coaches, administrators, and support staff, Derek coached a young group of throwers in the UK, including Sophie Hitchon, who, under Derek's tutelage, broke the British record in the hammer at 19 years old, and qualified for the Olympic Final in 2012 at the age of 21! Upon returning to Canada in 2012, Derek coached Sultana Frizell to a new Canadian record in the hammer throw.

Derek lectures extensively on athlete preparation and development, long term planning for athletes, and youth development. During his coaching career, he has been named to 5 World Championship Teams, 2 Olympic Teams, the European Championships, European Team Championships, European under-23 championships, and many others.
